

Sexual Health and Relationships

SRE is the multi layered acquisition of skills, knowledge and understanding of ourselves, our bodies and our relationships. Some students will show little awareness of their sexuality but for all students teaching will be appropriate to their level of understanding.

, The programme will: -

- Start with the pupils' knowledge and experience. Teaching will be sensitive to their age and needs.
- Relationships and Sexual Health is one progressive element of the Personal, Social and Health Education curriculum (PSHE).

Throughout the Key Stages students encounter aspects of Sexual Health and Relationships education (SHRE).

Students will learn about growth, emotions and their rights to dignity. Making the distinction between public and private parts of the body, public and private behaviour and the nature of public and private places, (just because they cannot see anyone does not mean that they cannot be seen!) Also understanding the social taboos associated with touching, personal space and physical contact. Recognising that their instincts are valid, if they are in a situation that makes them feel uncomfortable they can assert themselves.

As far as possible our students will learn the social skills that will help to keep them safe, particularly those associated with sexually related language and behaviour.

SHRE is taught in lessons and through their daily routines. As our students develop we continue to build a deeper understanding of themselves and how they relate to others. As part of PSHE some students will go on to learn about Sexual Health and Relationships, having a family and how to have a safe and healthy lifestyle.
